

Biographical Information
Kristi Block, Executive Vice President
Nebraska Grain and Feed Association

The Nebraska Grain and Feed Association is a 122-year-old trade association, composed of competing cooperative and independent grain elevators and feed mills from 198 communities across the state. The Association provides members with industry information, professional development and networking opportunities, and works with state and federal policymakers and regulators on legislation and regulatory issues impacting Nebraska's grain and feed industries.

Kristi Block has served the association in the role of the Executive Vice President of the Nebraska Grain and Feed Association since 2017. Kristi received a Bachelor of Science in Agricultural Advertising and Public Relations from the University of Nebraska–Lincoln and a Master of Business Administration from Midland University. Kristi was selected to be part of Class 37 of Nebraska LEAD (Leadership Education Action Development program). She is also involved in Lincoln Young Professionals and RISE Lincoln.

Prior to her employment with the Nebraska Grain and Feed Association, Kristi spent time working as a communications associate on early childhood education legislation and as an assistant manager in sales for an apartment complex. Kristi began her agriculture career growing up on a third-generation family farm in central Nebraska where they grew corn, soybeans and cattle. Kristi was a 10-year 4-Her and marketed sweet corn as her FFA Supervised Agricultural Experience.
